Mr. POTTER said one would suppo that if there was any subject entitled to preference in this House in respect of the order of business, it was. It was a subjecand relating to a fraud alleged to have o curred, changing the result of the election of the highest officer of the Government. Mr. POTTER-I am now speaking only this inquiry is not promulgated, then noth ing can, by its nature, be promulgated. Mr. HALE argued from the rules and manual that the resolution did not present

Mr. GARFIELD also argued against the resolution being a privileged one. He said are sent here to speak and vote for their States, and in no other way, whatever, can a State of this Union be heard on this floor except under the rule that on Monday mornings a call for joint resolutions of State and Territorial legislation may be in-troduced for printing and reference. This is a question of privilege without doubt.

then, doubtless, it may be a question of privilege; if he says this is a proposition by the House to raise and determine this question of truce in the presentchief magistrate to the office which hel holds, then, I answer, that the question has been determined by the joint voice of the two Houses of Congress, and it is beyond the reach of this House. If, again, the object of the resolution is merely to organize a committee for campaign purposes, to make campaign literature for the Fall, then the exigencies of the political party have never yet risen to the dignity of questions of the resolution offered yesterday by Mr. Potters of the political party have never yet risen to the dignity of questions of the resolution offered yesterday by Mr. Potters of the proposition that the committee in the present of the House without a quorum, as there were but 111 Democrats present, life being necessary to make a quorum. longer existed in the 45th Congress, and any attempt to exercise such power over bringing him to the presidency. If this House had the power to investigate the question as to how Mr. Hayes obtained the presidency, it also had the right to investigate the means by which James K. Polk obtained the presidency in his time, and it might go back to the days of George Washington and bring the facts of his election before the people.

Mr. POTTER held that the privilege asked for was only the privilege of having now considered the resolution presented. The privilege to which the resolution was entitled arose from the fact that it had been set in motion, first by the public casual ac-tion of a sowereign State, and second from the nature of the subject-matter to which it referred. The gentlemen on the other side had been quick to declare that if he (Potter) would say that the purpose of the reso declare. > The SPEAKER—The issue involved is a new one in the history of this country, and an examination of the basis in which the preamble and resolution are introduced, is proper. The legislature of Maryland pass-ed a joint resolution touching the subject treated of in the preamble and resolution just received, and a copy of that resolution of Maryland has been remitted to this tee, and is within the knowledge of the members of the House. Here is an appeal of a State of this Union to the Federal legsuch an investigation should go in order to reach the facts, nor what limit should be set upon it. A higher privilege than the one here involved and broadly and directly

Government officials with the frauds al-leged, the Chair is unable to conceive. The Chair finds enumerated among the ques-tions of privilege set down in the manual, questions of privilege of the highest character, and the Chair recognizes the right of the gentleman from New York to answer the same. (Applause on the Democratic side of the chamber.) The other points are of course held in reserve. Mr. CONGER appealed from the decis ion of the Chair. Mr. POTTER moved to lay the appeal on the table and the motion was agreed to yeas, 128; nays, 108—a party vote with the exception of Messrs, Fort, Mitchell and Butler, who voted with the Democrats, and all these points.

A point of order was then made that i required a two-thirds vote to give the com-mittee power to report at any time, which the Speaker sustained and whereupon Mr Potter struck out that part of the resolution Mr. HALE then asked permission to of fer an amendment, stating that if the Re-publicans desired to investigate the alleged trauds in other States than Florida and Louisiana, they could offer a resolution to that effect, and he and the Democrata generally would vote for it, but in this case he desired only to examine into those fraudwhich had become operative in effect.

Mr. BUTLER asked Mr. Potter to le him add the words "South Carolina" to his resolution, which Mr. Potter declined, and demanded the previous question. on resorted to the parliamentary expedient of withdrawing their votes, so that when the question came to be tested by the teller there were 116 ayes to 1 no—no quorum voting.

Mr. POTTER moved a call of the House which was made, and all the Republican inswered to their names, so that n proceedings under the call could be taken

Mr. Potter then asked the Speaker whether if the House adjourned now, this question would come up as unfinished business. The SPEAKER informed him that would remain before the House until dis-Mr. CONGER and other Republican called upon the Democratic side not to show signs of weakness so early. The taunt was answered just as defiantly and it was intimated that the question would remain before the House until there were enough Democrats present t constitute a quorum without the aid of the Republican vote. This will require the presence of at least thirty more Democrats than were in the House to-day.

Mr. POTTER moved that the House adjourn, and a vote was taken by yeas and nays.
